

Coaching is a fundamental part of life. It can help you learn and develop new skills and guide you to individual goals. The coaching I have received from John Allen has begun to do exactly that.

Over the months I have known John as my coach he has generated great enthusiasm in my role and has advised and supported me when I have experienced difficult times.

Going forward, I would like to work closer with John so he can assist in developing me to my full potential. So far we have worked on relevant skills related to my job role and I am beginning to identify the inner me.

I can only see my relationship with John getting stronger and the harder we work together I am confident I will achieve those goals I have always wanted.

I would certainly recommend John as a coach to anyone who needs guidance or support in any job role. The professionalism and passion that John possesses for coaching has generated a successful partnership in our relationship and I am certain the same will apply to students that John will work with in the future.
