Dear Martin,

I would just like to write and express my thanks and appreciation for the time we spent together during the business coaching sessions. The sessions have been a great success and helped tremendously both in achieving my personal objectives and improved performance for my direct reports.

Your flexibility in making appointment times was a great help, particularly as my schedule took me to the States and Canada for lengthy periods during our time working together.

The structure of the sessions and your detailed knowledge of business issues, both the cause and effect; helped tremendously in assessing how to deal with real live issues of relationship management, with employees and customers a-like.

I would like to take this opportunity of wishing you all the very best for the future and confidently expect we will be in a position to work together again, in the future.

Yours sincerely,
